INFRAGARD

InfraGard is a partnership of individuals representing businesses, academic institutions, state and local law enforcement agencies, and communities who are dedicated to collaborating and sharing information to prevent hostile acts against the United States. Today, there are 45,000+ members in over 80 local chapters represented nationally by the InfraGard National Members Alliance. These members work with the FBI to help protect the nation's critical infrastructure from computer intrusions, physical security breaches, and other attacks. Each FBI field office works with at least one chapter to discuss threats and share experiences and best practices.

Mission

Building partnerships with businesses and individuals at the local level across a range of mission sets across critical infrastructure.

Goal

To facilitate an ongoing dialogue that increases timely communication and information sharing between the FBI and private sector members.

Members

An InfraGard member is a private sector volunteer with an inherent concern for national security. They are driven to protect their own industry and further motivated to share their professional and personal knowledge to safeguard the country.

Benefits:

- ✓ Direct engagement with the FBI, other government agencies, and private sector experts at the local level
- ✓ Admittance to a members-only web portal that provides access to the latest FBI intelligence and the ability to collaborate and share assessments and critical infrastructure protection information with colleagues
- ✓ Opportunities to attend training events and briefings held by the FBI and its law enforcement partners
