National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) Section
Active Records in the NICS Indices as of December 31, 2018

Quick Reference Information

The NICS Indices contain information provided by local, state, tribal, and federal agencies of persons prohibited from receiving firearms under state or federal law. If the information is available in the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) or the Interstate Identification Index (III), entry into the NICS Indices is not always necessary; therefore, certain categories within the NICS Indices may show minimal or no participation by a state or federal agency.

NICS Indices Categories and Participation

1. Felony—the number of entries in this category might be low or nonexistent, because the ideal location for the information is the III. A NICS Indices entry would be ideal if the felony conviction information is not available in the III.
2. Under Indictment/Information—the number of entries in this category might be low or nonexistent because this is a temporary prohibition.
3. Fugitive from Justice—the number of entries in this category might be low or nonexistent because warrants should be contained in the NCIC.
4. Unlawful User/Addicted to a Controlled Substance—this information may be found in the III; however, if a qualifying conviction does not exist, but the prohibition has been established, the NICS Indices is a viable option.
5. Adjudicated Mental Health—since most information for this prohibition is not available in the III, there is the expectation for the number of entries in this category to be elevated.
6. Illegal/Unlawful Alien—the U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) makes entries; therefore, the number of entries in this category by states or other federal agencies should be low or nonexistent.
7. Dishonorable Discharge—the U.S. Department of Defense (DoD) makes entries; therefore, the number of entries in this category by states or other federal agencies should be low or nonexistent.
8. Renounced U.S. Citizenship—the U.S. Department of State (DOS) makes entries; therefore, the number of entries in this category by states or other federal agencies should be low or nonexistent.
9. Protection/Restraining Order for Domestic Violence—the number of entries in this category might be low or nonexistent because protection order information should be contained in the NCIC.
10. Misdemeanor Crimes of Domestic Violence (MCDV)—this information may be found in the III; however, if the information is unable to be updated to the III, the NICS Indices is a viable option.
11. State Prohibitors—these prohibitors include individuals who are prohibited based on state law only. This category is unique to each state/territory and dependent upon state law.

The Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act of 1993 (Brady Act), Public Law 103-159, requires Federal Firearms Licensees to request background checks on prospective firearm transferees. In 1998, the FBI established the NICS to process these background checks. The NICS is a national system that queries available records in the NCIC, the III, and the NICS Indices to determine if prospective transferees are disqualified from receiving firearms.

The NICS Indices contain information provided by local, state, tribal, and federal agencies of persons prohibited from receiving firearms under state or federal law. If the information is available in the NCIC or the III, entry into the NICS Indices is not always necessary. Therefore, certain categories within the NICS Indices may show minimal or no participation by a state or federal agency. As a result of the NICS Improvement Amendments Act of 2007 (NIAA), federal agencies are required to make records available, which are used in background checks performed by the NICS, and are relevant to the determination of whether a person is disqualified from possessing or receiving a firearm under Title 18, United States Code (U.S.C.), Section 922, Subsection (g) or (n). This can be accomplished through adding information to the NCIC, the III, or the NICS Indices. However, on the state level, unless otherwise instructed by state law or federal funding requirements, participation in the NICS Indices is strictly voluntary.

The categories in the NICS Indices mirror the prohibitions under 18 U.S.C. § 922 and include state prohibitions. It is critical to note that the NICS Indices is ever-changing. Contributors add, delete, and modify NICS Indices entries with frequency. In addition, certain prohibitive categories contain an expiration date, which could necessitate the related information's removal from the NICS Indices. Each contributor to the NICS Indices is responsible for the accuracy and validity of its own NICS Indices entries. The NIAA requires federal agencies to update, correct, modify, or remove records once they become aware that the information is no longer prohibiting under the Gun Control Act of 1968, as amended, no less than quarterly. It is important to note, not all federal agencies possess relevant records under the NIAA. Therefore, some federal agencies may have no submissions to the NICS Indices.

The following describes the cases in which an individual would be prohibited from possessing or receiving a firearm based on information contained in the NICS Indices:

Felony—Persons who have been convicted in any court of a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year; or any state offense classified by the laws of the state as a misdemeanor and is punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding two years, should be submitted to the III to update the identity history summary with the level of conviction. In the event fingerprints are not captured at the time of arrest, entry into the NICS Indices is an alternative. If the arrest includes the submission of fingerprints, this information should be contained in the III; therefore, there may be a low number or no entries in this category. The Department of Justice (DOJ) is undertaking the administrative burden for federal agencies by submitting convictions it processes/prosecutes to the NICS Indices.

Under Indictment/Information—Persons under indictment or information for a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, may be entered into the NICS Indices with an expiration date. This is a temporary prohibition, which may result in a low number or no entries in this category. However, information regarding individuals under indictment or information is not typically found in the III or the NCIC. Therefore, the NICS Indices is an alternative. The DOJ is undertaking the administrative burden for federal agencies by submitting indictments and informations it processes/prosecutes to the NICS Indices.

Fugitive from Justice—The 18 U.S.C. § 922 (g)(2) prohibition refers to persons who are fugitives from justice and includes active misdemeanor or felony criminal warrants. All warrants should be entered into the NCIC, but when the NCIC requirements are not met, and a wanted person has met the fugitive from justice criteria, entry into the NICS Indices is an alternative. Therefore, there may be few or no entries in this category. The DOJ is undertaking the administrative burden for federal agencies by submitting felony warrants it processes to the NICS Indices.

Unlawful User/Addicted to a Controlled Substance—Persons who are unlawful users of or addicted to any controlled substance are potential candidates for the NICS Indices. This prohibitor may be found in the III when there is a qualifying conviction. For controlled substance charges without a qualifying conviction, it must be established that the substance was a controlled substance (positive drug test or self-admitted use). This information, (such as an incident/arrest report showing drug test results) often not found within the III, may necessitate an entry into the NICS Indices. Since this is a temporary prohibition (one year), an expiration date is required to be established in the NICS Indices.

Adjudicated Mental Health—Information on persons adjudicated as a mental defective or involuntarily committed to a mental institution for treatment may be entered into the NICS Indices. Criminal cases with “Not Guilty by Reason of Insanity” qualify for entry into the III. If this information is not made available on the III, entry into the NICS Indices is a viable option. Civil cases would not be available on the III and would qualify for entry into the NICS Indices. Documents relevant to this prohibitor include judgment and commitment orders, sentencing orders, and court agency records of adjudications of the individual’s inability to manage his or her own affairs if such adjudication is based on marked subnormal intelligence or mental illness, incompetency, condition, or disease. Medical records containing mental health information are not required for this prohibitor.

Illegal/Unlawful Alien—Illegal and Unlawful Alien entries into the NICS Indices are typically made by the ICE. Therefore, entry by a state or other federal agency would be minimal to nonexistent in this category, unless additional information was discovered during research.

Dishonorable Discharge—Dishonorable Discharge is a military disqualification and is either found on the III or typically entered into the NICS Indices by the DoD or the appropriate branch of the military. Therefore, entry by a state or other federal agency would be minimal to nonexistent in this category, unless additional information was discovered during research.

Renounced U.S. Citizenship—Renounced Citizenship submissions into the NICS Indices are typically made by the DOS. Therefore, entry by a state or other federal agency would be minimal to nonexistent in this category.

Protection/Restraining Order for Domestic Violence—Protection or Restraining Order information is to be entered into the NCIC; however, if all NCIC requirements are unable to be met, entry into the NICS Indices is an alternative and may include an expiration date. If a state submits Protection/Restraining Order information to the NCIC, the NICS Indices entry is not necessary; therefore, there may be a low number or no entries in this category.

MCDV—In order to determine the prohibition for MCDV, the convicting statute, subsection, and qualifying relationship of the individual to the victim are required. This information may be posted to the III. When the information is unable to be posted to the III, entry into the NICS Indices is an alternative. If an agency posts the final disposition and relationship information to the III, there may be a low number or no entries in this NICS Indices category. However, if it is difficult to post this information (especially the relationship) to the III, the NICS Indices is an alternative, which in turn may increase the number of entries in this category.

State Prohibitors—These prohibitors include individuals who are prohibited based on state law only. This category is unique to each state/territory and dependent upon state law.
