DETAILS

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is seeking information in connection with the disappearance of Monica Elfriede Witt, who was last known to be traveling and working in Southwest Asia. She was last believed to be in either Afghanistan or Tajikistan in July 2013, where she was working as an English teacher. Witt may have also traveled to the United Arab Emirates or Iran, where she had previously traveled on at least two other occasions. The last known contact with her is believed to have been in June 2013. She had been working overseas for more than a year. Witt's friends recently reported her missing after not receiving any response from her in several months.

The FBI is asking anyone with information concerning this case to please contact their local FBI office or the nearest American Embassy or Consulate.
