On September 13, 2019, remains of an unidentified child were discovered at the Little Lass baseball fields located on Duck Creek Parkway in Smyrna, Kent County, Delaware. The child had been deceased for several weeks, possibly longer. The child is female, Caucasian or Hispanic, and likely between the ages of 2-5 years old. She had light brown, slightly wavy hair. An anthropological exam of her remains suggests that she likely suffered from chronic illness. The images displayed are facial reconstructions created by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children that depict what the child may have looked like in life.
